

Prentice family

Mr. Raymond has sold his grist mill, house, and all the property connected. Mr. Prentice of Whitewater being the purchaser. We understand that it is the intention of Mr. Raymond to go West this spring.

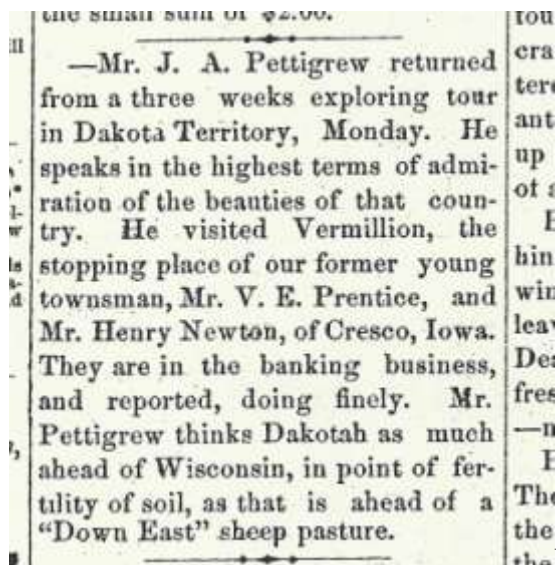

Nov. 27, 1867, Evansville Citizen, p. 4, col. 2, Evansville, Wisconsin

April 23, 1869, Janesville Gazette, p. 4, col. 5, Janesville, Wisconsin

Mr. Vernet E. Prentice and his charming new bride are stopping in town, visiting with his parents. Mr. Prentice has a good many warm friends in Evansville. The only thing wrong about the gentleman, that we know of is, that he is not yet, a subscriber to the Review. We cordially join with his numerous friends here in a hearty wish for a long life of unalloyed happiness to be his and his charming bride to enjoy. Later—The Review is ordered to be sent to Whitewater, Wis. Thanks.

June 22, 1870, Evansville Review, p. 4, col. 1, Evansville, Wisconsin

May 1, 1872, Evansville Review, p. 1, col. 2, Evansville, Wisconsin

Mr. M. V. Prentice, accompanied by his wife, made the home run to Evansville, direct from Vermillion, Dt., Saturday night last. He is on his way to New York, and will give Evansville a call again on his return, previous to leaving for Dakota.

Venett is looking hale and says he is doing finely in the banking business.

June 4, 1873, Evansville Review, p. 4, col. 1, Evansville, Wisconsin

Two urgent letters immediately following by a dispatch, from Mr. J. A. Pettigrew, of Vermillion, D. T., to Mr. Prentice's family, informed them that his wife and their daughter, lie dangerously sick with typhoid fever, and to see her alive must be the work of no delay. Mr. Prentice left on the midnight train, Monday.

January 12, 1876, p. 2, col. 1, Evansville Review, Evansville, Wisconsin

DIED.—In Vermillion, Sunday evening February 6, 1876, Mrs. J. A. PETTIGREW, aged 27 years, 10 months 15 days.

Though the public knew of Mrs. Pettigrew's severe sickness, yet her death shocked all her friends and found them illy prepared to receive the news. The loss which is occasioned by her death is not felt alone by her family, nor by her church, but it is a loss which is felt by all those who knew her. Her actions were so gentle, her ways so affectionate that she easily won friends, and easily kept them when once gained. She may be laid away beyond all human sight, but her life, her gentle spirit, her simple Christian faith will forever live in the memory of her friends, they will live and be fragrant with the sweetness of heaven.—Vermillion Register.

—Mr. J. A. Pettigrew arrived, with the remains of his wife, from Dakota, on the 8:20 Friday morning train. The hearse was at the depot, waiting, and the remains were immediately taken to the home she had left but a few months before in her usual health and spirits.

Friends called Friday and Saturday to view the form, as it lay enrobed in the casket of death, and gazed with sadness upon one who was a friend to all. Many more would have gladly called, to mingle their grief with the over-sorrowing hearts of husband and friends, had not the annoyance and exposure been too great for the members of Mr. Prentice's family just recovering from fever attack.

The funeral was attended by all who could gain admission. Had the funeral been a public one, no accessible room in the place would have accommodated the audience. The coffin was beautifully draped, and festooned with wreaths of myrtle, giving a weird sadness to the otherwise appropriate emblems of death.

After last after

UI where found many else

Ev

R. W

February 16, 1876, Evansville Review, p. 3, col. 4, Evansville, h —Mr. Harvey Prentice, wife and t daughter, and Mr. Levi Leonard w contemplate making a visit to Da d kota and Colorado, and will leave t home sometime the first of May. a

April 25, 1877, Evansville Review, p. 3, col. 2, Evansville, Wisconsin

S —Mrs. Harvey Prentice left for Ft. Col- C
lins, Colorado, Thursday night. Her f daughter, Mrs. Duane Bennett, is very t sick, and requires both her own and her l mother's care. f

There was a good attendance out to
p. 3, col. 2, Evansville, Wisconsin

February 6, 1878, Evansville Review,

Mrs. Duane Bennett, nee Miss Della Prentice, has seemed to have more than a usual share of hard luck. Being herself almost an invalid from a sprained ankle, she married and went immediately to Colorado; leaving home and friends. Her first child, after being a few months old, sickened with a fever and barely escaped death; herself all this time, lingering between "hope and despair." She was attended for several months by her own mother and that of her husband's. Recently Mr I. M. Bennett went out to attend to his affairs, and bring his son's wife and the women home. A few hours east of Omaha the helpless infant died, but was brought through on the journey, and arrived here early Friday morning last.
 The child was buried Saturday. Mrs.
 Bennett is gaining in health; but will remain at home during most of the summer.

with useful information.

—Mr. J. C. Sharp, exchanged his house with Mr. Prentice, for the Richardson house, on Main-st. as we mentioned some weeks ago. He is having the house completely renewed, and every department changed. The roof of the L part is raised two stories, the same height of the main building, and the rear buildings likewise raised and altered over in keeping with the rest of the house. He changes the whole interior arrangement, modernizing it in every particular;—connecting all the essential rooms by large, arched folding doors. He will replace the windows with larger ones, composed of two panes of glass only, and reconstruct the piazza. It will be one of the largest and most commodious houses in town. Mr. Morgan is doing the work.

the
that in c pep nur unl
Sto
Po err
the

to fe

v d

July 17, 1878, Evansville Review, p. 3, col. 2,

Evansville, Wisconsin

A Remarkable Case of Surgery.

Mrs. Stella Bennett nee Prentice, suffered an injury of her ankle just a ven years ago, from a very slight cause, and during most of the time has suffered extreme pain, and incurred a heavy expense for medical treatment. Hearing of the great skill of Dr. Sweet alias the great "bone setter," he was sent for, and came into town last week.

The case was diagnosed and pronounced curable,—three small bones in the ankle joint hed got misplaced which a few wrenchings this way and that, brought into place, with very little pain. The Dr. then assured her that she could put her foot upon the floor and step, if she would, a thing she had not dared to do for nearly seven years, without experincing great pain. It is very sensitive and tender yet, and will be so some days, from a relaxed state of the muscles. She is positive that a cure has been effected, and only requires a little time to make the bones as strong as ever.

This is a remarkable operation for any but Dr. Sweet, but with him, nothing unusual. Mr. Prentice's family feel pleased with the treatment, and think that a fee of $50 not a very exhorbitant charge for the cure that has been performed.

Mr. Sweet treated several other cases while here, but none so remarkable is this one. Mr. Griggs and Mrs. Jno. Osborn, called his services for long standing dislocations, and experienced relief.

September 4, 1878, Evansville Review, p. 3, col. 3, Evansville, Wisconsin

1880 Agricultural Schedule for Union Township, includes village of Evansville:

Harvey Prentice owned 35 acres, 2 horses and had 20 acres of corn that produced 900 bushels.

Mr. V. Prentice of the Black Hills, Dakota, registered at his father's, Mr. H. Prentice, last Saturday, for a week's visit with friends and acquaintances.

February 18, 1880, Evansville Review, p. 3, col. 3, Evansville, Wisconsin

Last week in mentioned the arrival of Mr. V. Prentice, we omitted mentioning that he was accompanied by his wife and family.

March 3, 1880, Evansville Review, p. 3, col. 2, Evansville, Wisconsin

—Mr. Harvey Prentice and wife left Tuesday for an autumnal visit to Dakota. Their first stop will be Vermillion, and then finish up later at Pierre and Sioux Falls.

September 26, 1884, Evansville Review, p. 1, col. 3, Evansville, Wisconsin

An Old Citizen Gone.

Mr. Harvey D. Prentice whose health had been failing for several months, died at his residence at the head of Main street, at 10 o'clock Wednesday night, August 20th, 1890. His age was 71 years last December. His complaint was diabetis or something nature of in Bright's disease.

Mr. Prentice lost his wife in Gainesville, Fla., on the 18th of February, 1888, and had since lived at the old home with his two unmarried daughters. Mr. Prentice was a native of York state having been born in South Byron in 1819, coming west in 1843 settled on a farm near Whitewater, where he remained until 1867 when he moved to Evansville, first buying the grist mills here, which he sold to Mr. Nichols, and afterwards buying the place at the head of Main St. where he lived until his death.

Mr. Prentice leaves a son, Mr. V. E. Prentice, who at this time was in the Black Hills, Dak., and two daughters—Mrs. Adella Bennett, a widow, and Miss Stella, who have given their father the most filial attention since the death of their mother.

The son was early telegraphed for, but, although making the greatest haste, could not reach home until Thursday noon.

Mr. Prentice had many kind traits of head and heart, and did many noble acts of christian kindness to the indigent and those in less favored circumstances in life. He recently experienced religion, and became a very earnest and devoted christain.

The funeral was held at his late residence Sunday at 2½ o'clock p m., sermon by the Rev. W. W. Stevens of the M. E. church assisted by J. E. Coleman, of the F. M. church. The attendance was very large, and the floral decorations were very fine indeed. The casket was of rolled steel,

August 26, 1890, Evansville Review, p. 4, col. 2, Evansville, deed. The casket was of rolled steel, and the nicest ever brought to Evansville, furnished by Undertakers H. Potter & Son. A long line of carriages attended the remains to the grave.

August 26, 1890, Evansville Review, p. 4, col. 2, Evansville, Wisconsin

Mr. Cyrus Prentice, brother of the late Harvey D. Prentice, of South Byron, N. Y., came in Friday to attend the funeral of his brother.

August 26, 1890, Evansville Review, p. 1, col. 2, Evansville, Wisconsin

Burglars About

Some light fingered people paid their respects to several homes in the First Ward Tuesday evening.

The home of Jonathan Weaver was entered and a silver watch was taken. Mrs. Weaver was awakened by a light in the next room and thinking a member of the family was ill spoke. Immediately the light disappeared. Subsequent search revealed the fact that the house had been entered and a watch taken.

Mr. Alvin Sawin also received a call from this visitor. By means of a step ladder the lower windows were reached and a pane cut out. Mr. Sawin's pocket-book containing about six dollars was taken.

Farther down West Main street attempts were made to enter.

Mrs. Della Bennett heard a grating sound in the kitchen and thought a rat was gnawing his way through some hard substances. This noise was kept up so long that she lighted a lamp and went out to find all quiet. Daylight revealed a wire screen at a kitchen window nearly out out.

At Mr. Caleb Snashall's the window screens all around the house had been raised about five inches no entrance was made. Upon freshly raked soil, foot prints are plainly seen under a west window.

Into the Robinson house they also made their way through a window opening on the porch. They were not discovered at all but in the morning Mrs. Pierce found that bureau drawers had been ransacked.

Other people in the neighborhood report strange sounds that in the night were attributed to a cat or dog. Some other houses show traces of efforts to burglar-

September 19, 1896, The Badger, Evansville, Wisconsin

74

Fred Colonis

Frank Gibbs

Wm. O. Collins

Fred Winston

Stand Pipe

Mc Emerton

John Tomlin

Mrs H. Emeru

Mc Whitted

Mrs Gibbs

B. Winn

Sawin Est.

Jacob Baum

Mrs. D. B. Bennett

G. Searls

Wm. Taggart

GARFIELD

Thos. Rulatt

Fred Winston

Nelson Winston Est.

Geo. Taggart Est.

STREET

HUNGERFORD'S
A.D.D.

PRENTICE ST.

Mrs. D. B. Bennett

Mrs. Stella Conradson

Mrs. J. F. Howard

Wm. Stevens

LIBERTY

Wm. Stevens

STREET

SEMINARY

STREET

CHURCH

Mrs. Bennett's house on the corner of North Main street has received a new coat of paint both inside and out, and with the new walks and improvements on the lawn a transformation has been worked in the appearance of the place much to its credit.

July 14, 1909, Enterprise, p. 1, col. 5, Evansville, Wisconsin

Prentice Conradson, Green Bay is visiting his mother, Mrs. Stella Conradson.

June 12, 1922, p. 8, "Evansville" news, Capital Times, Madison, Wisconsin

Mr. and Mrs. Prentice Conradson, Chicago, are visiting the former's mother.

June 14, 1923, Janesville Daily Gazette "Evansville" news, p. 9, col. 1, Janesville, Wisconsin

DIES SUDDENLY AT GREEN BAY HOSPITAL

Mrs. Estella Conradson Answers
Final Call Friday. Body Is Shipped Here for Burial

The announcement of the death last Friday at a Green Bay hospital where she had been taken for treatment, came as a surprise to the many friends of Mrs. Conradson of this city, who, while they knew she was there for treatment, did not realize that she was in such a serious condition.

Mrs. Conradson came to Evansville when still a child, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Prentice, from Whitewater, where Mrs. Conradson was born.

The deceased grew to young womanhood in this city, being a graduate of the city high school in the class of 1880, later attending and graduating from the University of Wisconsin.

After her marriage to Mr. Conradson she made her home at Madison, moving back to the old Prentice homestead on the corner of West Main and North Fourth streets after the death of her sister, Mrs. Della Bennett, several years ago.

Mrs. Conradson is survived by her husband of Green Bay and her son, Prentice, of Chicago.

The body was shipped here for burial, the ceremony being conducted on Monday afternoon by the Rev. Grant Clark at the Congregational church, interment being in Maple Hill cemetery.

January 17, 1929, Evansville Review, p. 1, col. 3, Evansville, Wisconsin

FIRE DEPT. CALLED TO CONRADSON HOME

The Evansville fire department was summoned to the residence of the late Stella Conradson on West Main street yesterday morning to extinguish a chimney blaze. No serious damage was done. On returning from the fire, the hook and ladder truck got stuck in deep snow and firemen were obliged to spend considerable time in getting it out.

January 31, 1929, p. 1, col. 7, Evansville Review, Evansville,

Wisconsin

SEMINARY GIVEN PARCEL OF LAND

The late Mrs. Stella D. Conradson of this city bequeathed a parcel of land to the Evansville seminary "to have and to hold as long as said institution shall be used as a Protestant Christian school," according to the petition for probate of her will in the Dane county court Feb. 6. The land will revert to her son, Prentice H. Conradson, if the school loses that character.

Mrs. Conradson left an estate of $30,400 with a probable indebtedness of $20,000. Most of the property was bequeathed to her son in Chicago, though $2,000 was left to her husband who lives in Green Bay. Mrs. Conradson died Jan. 11 at Green Bay.

February 28, 1929, p. 5, col. 5, Evansville Review, Evansville, Wisconsin

Miss Prentice Conradson advertises that she will sell at her home at the corner of Main and Fourth Streets, Saturday afternoon, October 5th, beginning at 1:00 o'clock, a lot of furniture consisting of oak table, dining room chairs, sewing machine, radio, bookcase, sideboard, kitchen utensils, gasoline stove, solid oak doors, and other articles too numerous to mention. This will be an auction sale to the highest bidder.

October 3, 1929, Evansville Review, p. 5, col. 2, Evansville, Wisconsin in La Crosse became affiliated with the First Methodist church.

A faithful Christian, Mrs. Chapel always found time to be of service to others and wherever she found need she rendered acts of kindness.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Chapel was preceded in death by two daughters, Mrs. Flora Townsend, LaCrosse, and Mrs. Clara King, Benton Harbor, Mich. Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Cora Becker and Mrs. Laura Huff, LaCrosse, and Mrs. Adeline Ivey, Kendall, Wis.; ten grandchildren, 12 great grandchildren, and many other relatives and friends.

"It seemeth such a little way to me, Across to that strange country, the beyond.

"And yet not strange for it has grown to be

"The home of those of whom I am so fond.

"They make it seem most familiar and most dear

"As journeying friends bring distant regions near."

FORMER LOCAL MAN PASSES IN DETROIT

Final Rites For C. M. Conradson Held Here Wednesday With Burial in Maple Hill

C. M. Conradson, 77, former Evansville resident and father of Prentice Conradson, this city, died suddenly Saturday morning in his apartment at Detroit, Mich.

The body arrived in Evansville Tuesday noon and funeral services were held here at 11 a.m. Wednesday in the Allen funeral home with the Rev. Grant V. Clark, pastor, officiating.

Burial was made in Maple Hill cemetery with Leonard R. Finn, Lyell Richardson, Vern Worthing, Jacob Nihart, and Ray and Hugh Hyne as pallbearers.

Mr. Conradson, a lifelong resident of Wisconsin, spent his early childhood in the village of Brooklyn and received his education at the University of Wisconsin.

Following his marriage to Miss Stella Prentice, this city, the couple resided here for many years in the old Prentice homestead at the corner of West Main and Fourth streets.

A prominent inventor, Mr. Conradson made a specialty of designing machine tools and as a mechanical engineer held several responsible positions with manufacturing firms.

Mr. Conradson was preceded in death by a daughter, Durinda, and his wife. He is survived by his son, Prentice Conradson, also a prominent inventor, and a sister, Mrs. Inger Roberts, Two Harbors, Minn.

Among those from out-of-town attending the services was F. D. Winkley, Madison, who was Mr. Conradson's first business partner in the manufacture of a power windmill which Conradson invented in 1883 while the two men were students at the University of Wisconsin.

"Mr. Conradson continued the manufacture of the windmill for eight years after which he invented a turret lathe which proved to be the most outstanding machine tool of that time," said Mr. Winkley in commenting on the deceased at the Review office Wednesday.

"Mr. Conradson's invention laid the foundation for the Gisholt foundry in Madison which now employs 900 men," he added.

Mrs. M. L. Ellis, who has been visiting her sisters, the Misses Montgomery in Weaver, Minn., the past ten days, is expected to arrive at her home here today.